Using the Induction Welded method of attaching IKO's InnoviTPO Single-Ply membrane offers many advantages.

IKO InnoviWeldTM System Advantages:

► Non-Penetrating and Secure

Because the IKO InnoviTPO roofing membrane is bonded from the underside using specially coated InnoviWeld Induction Plates, no fasteners penetrate the roofing membrane, contributing to a watertight and secure assembly.

► Proven Wind Uplift Resistance

The balanced distribution of InnoviWeld Induction Plates and InnoviFast Fasteners across the roof provides excellent wind uplift ratings at and above FM 1-90. See our TPO Code Approvals for Induction Welded Systems at www.iko.com/comm.

► Environmentally Important

The induction welding process is a smart, environmentally friendly solution that does not require use of VOC-containing adhesives for a cleaner, safer solution. The roofing system may be eligible for sustainable design credits, including LEED® certification, supporting your project's environmental goals.

► Can Save on Both Labor and Material Costs

InnoviWeld enables the use of wider membrane rolls — up to 12 feet — for fewer seams to weld and uses up to 50% fewer fasteners and plates than in-seam mechanically attached systems. Membrane installation requires fewer crew members than either adhered or in-seam mechanically attached systems, which can optimize production time on the roof. Because the use of adhesives is not necessary, InnoviWeld can be installed in cold conditions.

► Eligible for the IKO Diamond ShieldTM Limited Warranty

The InnoviWeld System can be used for roofs eligible for the IKO Diamond Shield Limited Warranty for up to 30 years.
